Master chronology added — 10-10-2026: Start with the Institutional Involvement Roadmap (1877–2026) for the date-ordered institution, corporate, court, named-person and evidence chain. The reported 1988 Cadw-to-Minister letter is separately catalogued at GHF-E152, as an awaiting-original placeholder.

This branch is the master index for party-by-party forensic assessments of every identified third-party actor appearing in the Great House Farm event, litigation, historical record chain or present recovery campaign. The unit of analysis is the legally or factually distinct institution, company, professional firm, court, police/prosecution body, public authority, named individual or other identifiable actor—not a generic category such as "government". Each review has its own chronology, identified actors, specific acts or omissions, evidence trail, legal-function context, disputed issues and potential responsibility questions.

2.1 Actor-by-actor forensic standard

- Legal/entity identity: identify the precise institution, corporate entity, partnership, court, police/prosecution body or other legal person involved.
- Named individuals: identify officers, judges, solicitors, surveyors, archaeologists, investigators, agents, directors and other individuals where the evidence actually identifies them.
- Specific conduct: record the particular act, decision, omission, instruction, communication, filing, report, search, enforcement step or failure—not merely that an organisation was "involved".
- Authority and duty: identify the statutory, contractual, professional, procedural or other function that applied at the relevant time, where established.
- Evidence and causation: link each proposition to the existing Wiki evidence and chronology and identify the asserted or demonstrated consequence.
- Liability discipline: distinguish established fact, reasonable inference, allegation, unresolved question and evidence still required. The existence of a review is not itself an allegation of wrongdoing or liability. [?]

2.2 Court and judicial-decision review standard

A court review must assess the court's adjudicative role as well as the custody or administration of its records. For each relevant order or judgment, identify the issues pleaded and argued; the evidence and parcel plans actually before the decision-maker; the legal and factual premises used; the propositions decided versus treated as assumption or background; whether a party had a fair opportunity to challenge a material proposition; whether later registration or title events could have affected the record before the court; and the order's legal and physical scope. Apply this to the 1955 High Court possession order, Hollis J's 1986 trial, the 1962 Cardiff County Court proceedings, the 1987 Court of Appeal appeal, the House of Lords leave process and the Strasbourg admissibility decision.

This standard is not an accusation of judicial wrongdoing. An adverse result or a judge's legal conclusion does not prove misconduct; conversely, courts are not exempt from evidence-led scrutiny of the material before them, the reasoning given and the consequences of any demonstrable mistake or procedural deficiency.

2.3 Liability / responsibility identification register

Every dedicated review should answer, as far as the evidence permits: Who? What entity or individual? What did they do or fail to do? When? What power, duty, contract or professional function applied? What evidence proves it? What consequence followed? What remains disputed? and what further evidence is required before attributing liability? Where an individual is not yet identified, the review records the role or office and makes identification an explicit evidence-recovery task rather than guessing a name.

2.8 Companies, private parties and existing actor pages

Bute Estate, Western Ground Rents Ltd, BP Properties Ltd and BP Pension Trust and BP Properties Ltd v Buckler already contain substantive private-party and litigation history. Their actor-specific reviews should identify the precise entity, relevant agents or officers where evidenced, chronology, acts/omissions and evidential questions, while linking back to the underlying pages rather than duplicating the substantive record.

2.9 Named-individual protocol

2.10 Global evidence controls

Forensic Master Chronology · Records Access Chronology · FOI & Public-Authority Reply Register · Missing Records Register · Master Scrutiny Issue Register · Source Conflicts Register [?]

Scope: inclusion establishes a documented appearance in the record, not breach, misconduct or liability.

2.11 Forensic control chain

The institutional index now sits alongside the Forensic Control-Point Chain. This is the common analytical model, but every institution/company/individual remains assessed in isolation on its own page. The control model asks where the first disputed premise entered the chain, who introduced it, who relied on it, what safeguard should have caught it, and what evidence establishes responsibility.

Current register additions: A-096 to A-105. Current programme report: October 2026 Highlight Report.

National Police Chiefs' Council (NPCC) — national search methodology, ACPO catalogue searches and retrieval responses (modern records-access involvement; no historical operational role established).

2.12 As-at evidence-status convention

2.13 Chronological appearance maps

Priority maps: GGAT · Cadw · South Wales Police · NPCC · NCTSO.

2.14 Institution appearance timeline directory — evidence-linked maps

Institution	Chronological evidence map	Current coverage / boundary
National Police Chiefs' Council (NPCC)	Open NPCC appearance timeline	Modern FOI and review correspondence; historical operational role not established. [?]
South Wales Police	Open South Wales Police appearance timeline	1988 reported appearances and modern FOI 719/26; incident-level evidence links require ongoing reconciliation.
Cadw	Open Cadw appearance timeline	1988 inspection photographs/listing decision and later contextual records.
Glamorgan-Gwent Archaeological Trust (GGAT)	Open GGAT appearance timeline	1982 warning, 1990 assessment and 1992 correspondence/approval trail.
National Counter Terrorism Security Office (NaCTSO / NCTSO)	Open NaCTSO appearance timeline	Modern retrieval/search function only; no historic deployment established.

Evidence-link acceptance test: each timeline event should link directly to the evidence page containing that dated appearance, not merely to this directory. Where only a register or master chronology is currently linked, that is provisional and should be replaced by the underlying item page when identified. Coverage is not exhaustive until all evidence-library records, reply-register items, and source attachments have been reconciled.

Coverage complete — 15 October 2026: every institution, company, court, archive and media body that appears in the record has a dedicated assessment page. Court reviews expressly include each court's adjudicative role: what was pleaded, what evidence and parcel plans were before the judge, which propositions were decided versus assumed, whether a material title/limitation argument could be advanced, and the legal and physical scope of the resulting order. This is evidence-led scrutiny, not an allegation of judicial misconduct. See the Institutional Assessment Coverage Register for the full checklist.

High-level theory cross-reference: Site-wide theory link: the Cedwyn Estate Working Theory is a hypothesis about an older estate and possible repeated parcel capture. Every institutional assessment must test only the organisation-specific acts and records before it; being listed here confirms a documented connection to the case, not involvement in a coordinated scheme.

2.15 Response Tactics & Response Friction Score

A source-based scoring register now distinguishes non-answers, cost or scope barriers, withholding explanations, record gaps and transparent replies. Each score applies to an individual message, not an entire institution; source status, confidence and mitigating details are recorded separately. Open the Response Friction Score register.
