Great House Farm / Tŷ Mawr, Llandough: meeting pack for Item 10

Council meeting, 22 October 2026 — Item 10: Great House Farm / Tŷ Mawr

Dear Mr Egan,

Thank you for your email, for listing our request as Item 10 and for the Zoom details. As published, Item 10 records two practical requests. It does not yet tell councillors or the public what the matter is. This pack sets it out, and we ask:

1. That a supplementary agenda is issued replacing the heading of Item 10 with the wording on page 2, within the notice period your standing orders require (three clear days, so by Saturday 17 October).
2. That this pack is circulated to all members with the meeting papers and retained with the record of the meeting.
3. That the Chair allows the family up to ten minutes when Item 10 is reached, in addition to the public session.
4. That our letters of 12 October (internal review, environmental-information request, subject access request and preservation request) are listed under Item 16, and that the internal review is conducted by someone other than the officer who made the original decision.
5. If the agenda cannot be amended in time, that a full item in the terms on page 2 is placed on the agenda for the next ordinary meeting, and that this is minuted on 22 October.

We are not asking the Council to decide title, fraud, or whether any court judgment was right. We are asking it to put the matter properly on the public record and decide what it can do within its own powers.

Yours sincerely,

Hywel Buckler and Sion Buckler, grandsons of Mary Williams of Great House Farm

In this pack: 1 Letter. 2 Replacement wording for Item 10 and draft resolutions. 3 Running order. 4 Statement. 5 Why it matters. 6 What the agenda leaves out. 7 The story and the courts. 8 Already on the record, disclosure and risks. 9 Records access. 10 Rights and sources.

2 REPLACEMENT WORDING FOR ITEM 10

We ask that the heading of Item 10 is replaced with the following, so that members and the public have proper notice:

> 10. Great House Farm / Tŷ Mawr, Llandough (demolished 6 December 1988): heritage, public record, community history, and the issues, risks and concerns raised by the family's research and records requests. To receive a statement and meeting pack from the Williams–Buckler family and to consider:
> a) receiving the family's statement and pack into the record of this meeting;
> b) placing Great House Farm / Tŷ Mawr on future agendas as a standing item and appointing a councillor as liaison;
> c) revising the Council's published village history to record Great House, its manorial role, the 1988 demolition and the 1,026 published burials;
> d) forwarding the family's invitation to former members, former clerks and long-standing residents of the 1950s–1990s (as previously listed);
> e) a working group to scope an interpretation board or memorial near the green (monastery, burials, manor, the 1897 wireless trials, Peerless Jim Driscoll), and the family's offer of a talk (as previously listed);
> f) arrangements for the internal review, environmental-information request and subject access request received on 12 October 2026, and preservation of related records;
> g) writing to Cadw, the Vale of Glamorgan Council, HM Land Registry, Amgueddfa Cymru, the National Library of Wales and the Ministry of Justice in support of disclosure to the family and preservation of records, and noting the family's call for an independent inquiry;
> h) reflecting Tŷ Mawr's heritage in the Council's work under Items 12 and 14.

2 DRAFT RESOLUTIONS

In priority order. A councillor may wish to give notice of motion in these terms.

1. Put it on the record. That the Council receives the statement and meeting pack of the Williams–Buckler family, records them in the minutes, and publishes them with the papers for this meeting.
   Nothing about Great House is on the Council's record. This is the first step and costs nothing.
2. Make it a standing item. That “Great House Farm / Tŷ Mawr” is placed on the agenda of each ordinary meeting until the Council resolves otherwise, and that Councillor _____ acts as the Council's liaison with the family.
   This is the first meeting, not the last. Detail belongs to later meetings, in public, with papers in advance.
3. Correct the Council's own history. That the Council's published village history is revised, with heritage advice and the family's input, to record Great House, the manorial courts held there, its demolition in 1988, and the 1,026 burials published in the excavation report.
   The page gives “over 800 burials” (the published report counts 1,026), dates the Roman villa to the 1990s (it was excavated in 1978–79), and does not mention Great House, the Williams family or the demolition.
4. Mark it on the ground. That a working group is set up to scope an interpretation board or memorial near the green, covering St Dochdwy's monastery, the 1,026 early medieval burials, Great House and the manor, the 1897 wireless trials and Peerless Jim Driscoll, with wording checked against sources and agreed with the family; and to explore a Llandough companion to the Marconi artwork on the Cardiff Barrage.
   There is nothing on the ground that records any of it. The family has offered a free talk to the Council or residents.
5. Find the witnesses. That the Council forwards the family's invitation to former members, former clerks and long-standing residents, leaving it to them whether to make contact; no personal details to be disclosed without consent.
   This is the request already listed as Item 10(a). Forwarding an invitation discloses nobody's data.

6. Open the Council's own records. That the internal review of the 11 October refusal is conducted by a person other than the officer who made it; that the environmental-information request and the subject access request of 12 October are each answered under their own law and time limit; and that all Council records concerning Great House, Church View Close and village green VG41 are preserved.
   The refusal priced the request at 224 sets of minutes and gave figures that do not reconcile. Land and heritage records can fall under the Environmental Information Regulations, which have no automatic cost cap.

7. Speak up for disclosure. That the Clerk writes on the Council's behalf to Cadw, the Vale of Glamorgan Council, HM Land Registry, Amgueddfa Cymru and the National Library of Wales, and to the Ministry of Justice about its outstanding reply to Stephen Doughty MP, copied to Mr Doughty and the area's Members of the Senedd, supporting full and prompt disclosure to the family and the preservation of all records meanwhile; and that the Council notes the family's call for an independent public inquiry.
   A letter from the community's own council carries weight no family letter can. It asks for openness, not a verdict.

8. Carry it into tonight's other business. That Tŷ Mawr's heritage, including Peerless Jim Driscoll and the 1897 wireless trials, is considered in the Council's response to the Welsh Government call for evidence on culture and sport (Item 14, closing 18 December 2026) and in the heritage and identity of the proposed Llandough and Cwrtyrala Community Council (Item 12).
   The agenda already asks the Council to think about Welsh culture, sport and local identity. Here is Llandough's strongest example.

3 RUNNING ORDER

By Friday 16 October	Send the pack to the Clerk. Ask for a properly worded Item 10, circulation to members, and time to speak. • Email this PDF to clerk@llandough-cc.co.uk with the covering letter on page 1. • Ask for a supplementary agenda replacing the Item 10 heading with the wording in the pack. The agenda must be published at least three clear days before the meeting, so ask for it to go out by Saturday 17 October. • Ask a community councillor to give written notice of a motion in the same terms, so the Council can decide something on the night. • Ask the Chair for up to ten minutes under Item 10, as well as the public session. • Ask the Clerk to list the family's letters of 12 October under Item 16.
Item 1	Declarations of interest. Listen. Members connected to the site or the parties should declare. • Anyone living on or next to Church View Close, or with links to the developer, landowner or the 1980s parties, should say so before the item is discussed.
Item 4	Public participation. The three-minute statement. Scope, not detail. End with the three asks. • Use the statement in “At the microphone”. • Ask the Chair, before you sit down, whether the family may speak again when Item 10 is reached.
Item 5	Councillor George Carroll. The Vale ward member for Llandough. Ask him to take three things to the Vale. • The missing Appendices C, D and E from the Vale's FOI disclosure (request 00211557). • The Vale Scrutiny Committee's reply that it was unable to consider the family's request. • The history of village green VG41, registered 16 June 1970 beside the farm.
Item 10	Great House Farm / Tŷ Mawr. The main event. Walk the eight asks. Push for a decision on the first, second and fifth. • If the Council cannot decide everything tonight, ask for a working group and a date. • Ask that every action is minuted with a name and a deadline.
Item 12	Llandough and Cwrtyrala Community Council. A new council needs a heritage. Ask that Tŷ Mawr is part of it.
Item 14	Welsh Government: culture and sport. Peerless Jim and Marconi make Llandough a case study. Offer to help draft.
Item 16	Correspondence. Check the family's 12 October letters are listed. No decisions can be taken here.
Within a week	Follow up. Ask for the draft minutes, the named liaison councillor, and the date the item returns.

3 THREE RULES AT THE MICROPHONE

1. Name the source. Say where a fact comes from: the court, the heritage record, the newspaper, the archive.
2. Say whose account it is. “Our family account is…” is accurate, and accuracy is hard to dismiss.
3. Ask for a decision and a date. Every ask ends with who does it and when it comes back.

4 STATEMENT TO THE COUNCIL

About three minutes. For the public participation session (Item 4), and for the record.

Chair, councillors, thank you.

My grandmother was Mary Williams of Great House Farm, Tŷ Mawr, beside St Dochdwy's Church. Our family account is that we lived in that house for 320 consecutive years, from 1667 until it was demolished at about four in the morning on 6 December 1988.

Thank you for listing it. Item 10 describes a plaque and a mailing list. I want you to see the size of what sits under Church View Close.

It is the likely ground of St Dochdwy's monastery, one of the great early Christian centres of Wales, whose site has never been formally located. It is where 1,026 people were buried in the early medieval period, the largest such population yet recovered in Wales; their remains are in museum storage. It is the house where, according to the official Historic Environment Record, the manorial courts of Llandough and Leckwith were held. Our family tradition ties it to Marconi's 1897 wireless trials at Lavernock, and published sources record Peerless Jim Driscoll's first fight in its barn.

None of that is on the Council's own history page. Great House is not mentioned at all.

In 1988 the story was told as the eviction of squatters. We were not squatters. The courts decided who could live in the house. No court has ever decided who owned it. The house came down the morning after Cadw declined to list it, while our application to the European Commission of Human Rights was still pending.

Our research has only started, and nothing yet meets the legal threshold to reopen the case. That is because the records are still being kept from us. For eighteen months we have asked more than twenty organisations. The Ministry of Justice has not answered our MP. The Ministry of Defence will neither confirm nor deny. Cadw says its 1988 file was probably destroyed but holds no record of destroying it. The Land Registry's own list of 43 documents leaves out the deed its title rests on. This Council refused our request on cost, with figures that do not add up.

What is already public is enough to show the official story is wrong. BP registered the farmhouse as a separate title, then merged it into the fields while the appeal was running. The Local Plan said the buildings should be kept. Ground marked low potential in 1990 turned out to hold burials.

I am not asking this Council to try the case. I am asking you to do three things. Put our statement and pack on the public record. Make Great House Farm a standing item, with a named councillor. And write to the bodies holding the records, asking them to disclose them fully. The detail can follow, meeting by meeting, in the open.

Your mission is “Serving our community, preserving our identity”. Tŷ Mawr is part of that identity. For thirty-eight years it has had no voice. Tonight, please give it one.

Thank you.

SIXTY-SECOND VERSION

Chair, councillors, thank you. My family, the Williams–Bucklers, lived at Great House Farm, Tŷ Mawr, beside St Dochdwy's Church, for 320 years until it was demolished at four in the morning on 6 December 1988. The courts decided who could live there; none ever decided who owned it. That ground is the likely site of St Dochdwy's monastery, where 1,026 early medieval burials were excavated. The manorial courts sat in that house. Peerless Jim Driscoll's first fight is recorded in its barn. Your own village history mentions none of it. Our research has only started, and the records that would test our case have not yet been produced by more than twenty bodies, this Council included. Tonight we ask three things: put our statement on the record, make Tŷ Mawr a standing item with a named councillor, and write in support of full disclosure. Your mission is preserving our identity. Tŷ Mawr is part of it. Thank you.

5 WHY IT MATTERS: SCOPE, POLITICS, CULTURE

SCOPE: BIGGER THAN A PLAQUE.

A sacred site, a manorial seat, a Welsh family, and a public record that left all three out.

- St Dochdwy's monastery, one of the great early Christian centres of Wales, whose site has never been formally located.
- 1,026 early medieval burials, the largest such population yet recovered in Wales, now in museum storage.
- Great House, where the manorial courts of Llandough and Leckwith sat.
- A family's 320 years, ended by demolition and recorded only as an eviction.
- Eighteen months of records requests to twenty organisations, including this Council.

POLITICS: WHO WRITES THE RECORD?

A family and a village, or closed files and corporate lawyers.

- The family puts it plainly: force, stealth and licence on one side; peace, transparency and freedom on the other. A Welsh home and a Welsh Christian site were decided by distant institutions and a pension fund's property company, and the Welsh family was left without a voice.
- The ask of this Council is not partisan. It is the Council's own four commitments: open, accountable, responsive, participatory.
- Fraud, concealment and government involvement are not established. The family is seeking the records that would test them. Openness is how that question gets answered, whichever way it falls.

CULTURE: LLANDOUGH'S STORY, NOT ONLY OURS.

Saints, a manor, the first wireless message over open sea, and a world boxing champion.

- The monastery and its dead belong to every Christian and every Welsh person, not to a housing estate.
- Marconi's 1897 trials at Lavernock made this coast part of world history. Family tradition puts Great House in that story.
- Peerless Jim Driscoll's first fight is recorded in a barn at Great House Farm.
- None of this is marked anywhere in Llandough.

“SERVING OUR COMMUNITY, PRESERVING OUR IDENTITY.”

The Council's mission statement. Its commitments: be open and accessible in all our decision making; be accountable in all our council activities; be responsive to the needs of the community; encourage community participation.

6 WHAT THE AGENDA LEAVES OUT

MONASTERY	Never formally found. St Dochdwy's monastery is attested from the 7th century. Its site has never been located. Heneb's record says the exact location of the monastic centre has not been established. The Council's own page says Llandough was “almost certainly” its site. The ground beside the church where Great House stood was demolished in 1988 before its fabric could be fully examined; medieval pottery had been found on the slope beside the house in 1962–63. On record
1,026	The dead are in storage. The largest early medieval burial population recovered in Wales, excavated in 1994. Excavated March–July 1994 by the Cotswold Archaeological Trust ahead of the houses. In 1990 the area had been marked “low potential”. The Home Office licence lapsed for part of the dig. On 28 July 1994 the developer, as landowner, gave the remains and finds to the National Museum of Wales. Nothing on the ground marks them. On record
THE MANOR	The courts sat here. The manorial courts of Llandough and Leckwith were held at Great House. Recorded in the official Historic Environment Record (GGAT02038s), which also notes building details suggesting an older core, a 1974 survey limited by the ownership dispute, and demolition on 6 December 1988 amid considerable local controversy. On record
1897	Marconi. The first wireless message over open sea crossed from Lavernock to Flat Holm. The trials of May 1897 are documented by Amgueddfa Cymru. Family tradition records that Thomas Williams of Great House carted the equipment, and that the house lodged visitors connected with the work. That family part is still to be corroborated, which is a reason to research it, not to leave it out. Family account
PEERLESS JIM	First fight, in the barn. Jim Driscoll, Cardiff's featherweight legend, is recorded as first fighting at Great House Farm. Published sources cite the National Monuments Record for Wales for Driscoll's first fight in a barn at Great House Farm, Llandough, and Stead and Williams, Wales and its Boxers (2008). The barn was demolished with the house. On record
04:00	Demolished in the dark. The morning after listing was refused, with Strasbourg still pending. On 5 December 1988 the court refused to continue the injunction pending the European Commission of Human Rights, and Cadw said the house was not of sufficient merit to list. Demolition began at about 4am the next day. An MP had asked the Lord Chancellor to review the case. The house was never fully recorded. On record
OUR PAGE	Says 800. Says nothing. The Council's village history omits Great House altogether. The Council's About Llandough page mentions the villa, “over 800 burials”, the church and the cross. It does not mention Great House, the manorial courts, the family or the demolition. On record
18 MONTHS	Closed doors. Twenty organisations asked. Files destroyed without record, deeds not on file, refusals on cost. On record

7 THE STORY THEY TOLD, AND THE RECORD

~~SQUATTERS.~~	Born, married and died in the house for 320 years. Family account
~~AN EVICTION.~~	A demolition at 4am, the morning after the last protection fell. On record
~~A FARMER'S FEUD.~~	Against a landlord the Commons heard called “the most rapacious” in South Wales, by then owned by the BP pension fund. On record
~~AN OLD FARMHOUSE.~~	The house where the manorial courts sat. On record
~~NOBODY CARED.~~	About a thousand signed in 1974. The village protested in 1988. On record
~~THE COURTS SETTLED IT.~~	They settled who could stay. No court ever ruled on who owned the house. Family account

LOST ON POSSESSION. NEVER TRIED ON OWNERSHIP.

- The courts decided possession. BP never asked a court to declare it owned the house, and the 1974 action in which Mary Williams pleaded ownership was adjourned and never relisted.
- The possession clock was started in 1955, from an order about the fields. The family's case is that the house was a separate parcel and theirs from 1928.
- Mary Williams's statement records the family papers being taken from the house in 1950–52. They were never produced in court.
- BP registered the farmhouse as a separate title in 1983, then merged it into the fields title in February 1987, while the appeal was pending.
- No deed conveying the house to Western Ground Rents or BP, earlier than a 1975 conveyance between two BP companies, has been produced.
- HM Land Registry's schedule of 43 first-registration documents does not include the 1969 conveyance on which the title rests.

The High Court (1986), Court of Appeal (1987), House of Lords (1988) and European Commission of Human Rights (1989) all ruled against the family. These are the family's grounds for saying the outcome was unfair and wrong. Testing them is for the courts, the Land Registry and regulators. This Council is not asked to decide them.

8 ALREADY ON THE RECORD

Research has only started. Nothing yet meets the legal threshold to reopen the case on fraud, concealment or government involvement, and the family does not claim it does. The records that would test those questions are the ones not yet disclosed. What is already on the public record is enough to show the official story is wrong.

From the family's public registers on the Great House Farm Wiki: 86 open lines of enquiry · 54 records missing or withheld · 20+ bodies asked since November 2025.

The root deed is not on file.	HM Land Registry's schedule of 30 July 2026 lists 43 documents on the 1982–83 first-registration files. The 31 December 1969 conveyance, recited as the root of BP's title, and a 1971 abstract are not among them. No document on file conveys the farmhouse parcel to Western Ground Rents or BP before a 1975 deed between two BP companies. On record Wiki: Missing Records M-007, M-035–M-041
Two titles, merged during the appeal.	Title WA240304 (farmhouse and garden) was applied for on 23 February 1983, four weeks before Mary Williams died. On 2 February 1987, with the appeal pending, it was amalgamated into WA231076. The case was argued as one farm while the register held two. On record Wiki: Anomalies A-025, A-026
Registered over a woman living in the house.	Linklaters & Paines applied to register BP on 30 November 1982. On 23 February 1983 BP's solicitors applied for the farmhouse title, certifying they knew of no question or doubt affecting it. Mary had pleaded ownership in 1974 and told the Daily Telegraph her solicitors said she had a valid claim. BP's 1974 action was adjourned and never relisted. The family's account is that notice of registration reached them only after her death; the original notice is still being sought. Family account Wiki: Anomalies A-011, A-012; M-038
Cadw kept no file.	Cadw photographed the house on 29 July 1988 and coded it “YYY”, which it has explained two different ways. It refused to list on 5 December 1988. It says its file was “quite likely”, then “most likely”, destroyed, and holds no destruction record. The Wales Office searched only its digital records and says paper files “would have been” transferred. On record Wiki: Anomalies A-037–A-041; M-018–M-020, M-052
The plan said keep it.	The officer's report on BP's 1989 outline application records that the buildings the Local Plan said should be retained had been demolished. GGAT's 1989 report had described the farmhouse as a “county treasure”. Permission was granted on 13 March 1990. No environmental screening decision has been found for a 3.4-acre site above the threshold. On record Wiki: Anomalies A-005, PL-002, PL-012
The pages that are missing.	The officer's report says further GGAT comments, two public representations and BP's agents' response were attached as Appendices B–E. None is in the file disclosed in 2026. One representation came from a County Councillor described as a member of GGAT. The Vale's internal review has been unanswered since July. On record Wiki: Anomalies A-048, A-049, PL-003–PL-005
Warned in 1982. Called “low potential” in 1990.	In October 1982 GGAT told the planners occupation might continue north of the church and asked for investigation before development. In 1989 GGAT advised, specified and priced the assessment, then took BP's commission to do it. Its 1990 trenches could not investigate the eastern ground but zoned it low potential. The 1994 excavation found the burials there. GGAT disclosed its dual role; the question is independence, not secrecy. On record Wiki: Anomalies A-042–A-047, PL-008
Never properly recorded.	RCAHMW records its correspondence with Mrs Buckler as lost since 1986–87, holds no record of being told of the demolition, and made additions to its plan on 12 December 1988, six days after the house came down. On record Wiki: Anomalies A-035, A-036; M-021

The Lords papers were there all along.	The House of Lords judicial papers in BP Properties Ltd v Buckler (YHL/PO/JO/10/11/2536) were catalogued in May 2026 and identified on 23 September after earlier keyword searches failed. The Strasbourg case file was destroyed in 2000. On record Wiki: Anomalies A-006, A-007; M-005, M-051
Five bailiffs, fifteen police, a chainsaw.	On 29 April 1988 bailiffs broke the doors with poleaxes while his children were behind them. In November he was injured, taken to Llandough Hospital, and charged from his hospital bed. The house came down from 4am on 6 December. The family's papers, photographs and Mary's journal were lost. 8 WHERE DISCLOSURE STANDS

Ministry of Justice	Has not answered Stephen Doughty MP. The probate request is on hold.
Ministry of Defence	Will neither confirm nor deny Special Forces records (FOIA s.23(5)). Admits it missed its deadlines.
This Council	Refused on cost, priced only on reading minutes. Nothing disclosed. The review is with the same Clerk.
HM Land Registry	No confirmation since June that the 1982–83 files will be preserved or can be inspected. Told the family the title was “closed in 2005”.
Cadw	1988 listing file probably destroyed; no record of when, how or by whom.
Vale of Glamorgan	Planning Appendices B–E not produced; internal review unanswered since 7 July.
Heneb (formerly GGAT)	Says it is not subject to FOI because it is a company, while holding GGAT's records.
The National Archives	House of Lords bundle identified, not yet produced.

No complaint has yet gone to the Information Commissioner or the Public Services Ombudsman for Wales. Those are the next steps if disclosure does not come.

8 IF NOTHING IS DONE

- Records keep disappearing. Preservation of the Land Registry files has not been confirmed. Every year without a hold is another chance of loss.
- Witnesses are dying. Mary died in 1983, William in 1992. People who remember the 1950s to the 1980s will not be here for long.
- The dead stay unmarked. 1,026 people from St Dochdwy's monastic cemetery, with nothing on the ground to say so.
- The wrong story becomes the official one. The heritage record classes the site as “Post Medieval – Farm”. The Council's own history omits it.
- The green has a history too. The family's case is that village green VG41 was part of their farm until 1955. The Council's records on it are among those requested.

9 RECORDS ACCESS: EIGHTEEN MONTHS, TWENTY ORGANISATIONS

Stages: 1 Enquiry, 2 Reply, 3 Chase, 4 Review, 5 Complaint, 6 Regulator, 7 Democratic, 8 Tribunal. ■ = step taken. From the family's own correspondence log, to 12 October 2026. A ring counts as opened when the family has taken that step with that body; it is not a finding about how any body behaved.

THIS COUNCIL'S OWN FILE

21 September 2026	Request to the Council for records of Great House, the green and the 1982 transfer.
11 October 2026	Refused on cost: reading and assessing 224 sets of minutes, 2002–2016. The letter gives 20 + 10 minutes a set (6,720 minutes) but totals “over 2,240 minutes”.
12 October 2026	Internal review requested, plus a separate environmental-information request, a subject access request and a request to preserve records. Review asked of the same Clerk.
9 November 2026	Twenty working days: environmental-information reply due.
12 November 2026	One month: subject access reply due.

10 THREE RIGHTS, NOT ONE

FOI	Freedom of Information Act 2000. General recorded information. Twenty working days. A council may refuse if compliance would cost more than £450 (18 hours at £25), but must estimate reasonably and offer advice to narrow the request.
EIR	Environmental Information Regulations 2004. Information on land, development and the historic environment. Twenty working days. No automatic cost cap: refusal only if "manifestly unreasonable", and then only if the public interest favours it.
SAR	UK GDPR, Article 15. Information about the person asking. One month, free. Covers what the Council holds about the living family members; it does not cover records about people who have died.

Prepared by the Williams–Buckler family for the meeting of Thursday 22 October 2026. The family's accounts and legal contentions are labelled as such. Fraud, concealment or government involvement has not been established; the family is seeking the records that would test it. This pack concerns Llandough-juxta-Penarth, not Llandough-juxta-Cowbridge or the Great House at Llandow or Aberthin. Online: 2026-10-22.bucklerfamily.estate
